Show all images, or only those from one or more feed. If images from multiple feeds are displayed, you can choose any combination of feeds to show. The program is not as user-friendly as it seems. In fact, it requires quite a bit of knowledge on how feeds and RSS work. The image pane is an extremely small window that can't be enlarged. Furthermore, there's also no way to move it off the main window or to set it to a different screen. Finally, there's no way to stop the program or to pause it while you work with other things. If you're not planning on making large slideshows, Feed Slide Show Gadget is a good choice. However, if you're willing to play around with it, there are a number of useful features. Feed Slide Show Gadget is a small program which helps individuals create slideshows from RSS feeds images. It is important to understand that this widget does not sign up to feeds for you, it just imports pictures from previously made subscriptions. The interface is plain and simple, allowing any GettingGigs.com is a creative job board which enables job seekers to find short term work as well as skill-based work that can be completed remotely. It is important to know that this kind of work is very popular in the technology industry and that it is becoming an important way to make a living for many people. If you are looking to find some work doing photography, video production or art, this is a great place to find it. The website has a nice search engine which allows you to focus on keywords such as work type, term, area, description, rate, start date, interest, skill, location and more. The interface of GettingGigs.com, is also quite easy to navigate and there is a wide variety of categories for your work to fall into. As well as that, the search engine is extremely user-friendly and allows a powerful filter to narrow down your choices. There is also an option available to filter results by work type, so that you can get a nice overview of the listings. The "related jobs" filter also allows you to get a helpful list of similar listings in a single click. The website also offers a handy feature which indicates how long your job posting is still relevant. When a job listing reaches its expire date, the part about the expire date is color-coded and the rest of the job is displayed in grey. You can also see the date on the listings, which is quite helpful if you are unsure about the old ones. Even if you are not concerned about listing length and you are confident about the relevance of your work, other job seekers will appreciate it if you are kind enough to post a one-month notice for clients. GettingGigs.com comes with a nice range of filters, allowing any type of user to get exactly what they are looking for. It also has a very user-friendly interface and it worked flawlessly in our tests.
